VOTE TO INDICT BIG STEEL MEN

NEW YORK, June 20.—Criminal indictments charging conspiracies to control prices of steel and steel products throughout the country, have been filed by a federal grand jury, according to reports current here this afternoon.

Significant rumors were that the indictments would be presented late in the day against certain officials of the United States Steel Corporation, its subsidiaries and many independent steel companies.

It was reported that a prominent law firm in this city which for years has been identified with many of the so-called steel contracts is involved in the federal case.

Some of the evidence taken is said to show that the steel business of the United States has been divided up into about twenty pools, formed by agreement between the subsidiaries of the steel cor-operation and many independent Agents for the government are alleged to have come into the possession of contracts with which to establish their contention.

The proposed criminal action is separate from the investigation of the steel industry which the bureau of corporations at Washington has been carrying on for about three years.

"Hey, Cap, shall I run the ladder up and put out the fire?"
"Say, waiter, turn on the bottle for one more cup. Tell the cook to turn em over easy."

The fire department was called out at 10:15 a.m. to quench a flame (singular number) that burned in the awning in front of a restaurant at No. 126 Bedford street. Outside the department apparatus clanged and banged, firemen ran higher and thicker than the clouds. Inside forty or more diners hugged the counter, calmly putting food away.

A few from the inside rushed out with pitchers of water. In a few minutes the fire was out, other than the firemen drove off, apparently disgusted. Inside the forty or more diners kept busy with

SUGAR SILENCED BY ROOSEVELT?

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Charges that President Roosevelt and Attorney General Bonaparte knew of the working of the Best Estate Trust Company, of Philadelphia by the American Sugar Company, and that Roosevelt and Bonaparte persistently refused to act against the sugar trust, were made today when George H. Earle, Jr., resumed his testimony before the House sugar investigating committee.

Mr. Earle, who is a partner in the Best Estate Trust Company, declared that he had had no conversation with the president of the company in 1909 and that the president had been very busy. SENATE HELD UP BY LA FOLLETTE

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.
Editorial Compendium of American.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—La Follette holds the Senate up to-day. He is in his power to expedite or to delay the passage of reciprocity. It is in his hand to advance the tariff and the general tariff schedule.

It is in his hand to make possible an early adjournment of the Sixty-second Congress or protracting action of the session until the summer months into the autumn. And this because La Follette is the unfettered leader of the insurgent Republicans. He is their candidate for President in 1912. He is perhaps the ablest and most energetic member of the Senate in the insurgent ranks. He is the best speaker, the most resourceful and the dominating personality in the group.

For this reason La Follette's objection or approval can permit or deny the early consideration of the reciprocity matter. His concurrence can also bring about an early consideration of the tariff measures now pending before the Senate. His objection can delay the tariff measures in his hands discreetly and with concertation. That he holds the power men of all factions are agreed—Roosevelt and Taft, Martin and Bailey and Cushman and Chappin.

Senator La Follette dominates the Senate in this crisis because he dominates the insurgent Senators.

Balance of Power.
Outside of La Follette this is the Senatorial situation: Democratic leader, Martin John Sharpe Williams, is close leading the Democratic ranks, speak for thirty-four of a total of fifty-two Democrats in the Senate. He is the power in the Senate in favor of expediting the passage of reciprocity and tariff measures.

Senator Furness, chairman of the Finance Committee, is the power in the Republican ranks, reinforced by Morris Knapp, Lodge and Taft. The Republican rank who are loyal to the President, if not to the party, expect to be strong in the effort to expedite unqualified reciprocity.

But the Republican majority represented by Furness and the Democratic minority represented by Martin, are unable to proceed if the insurgent group represented by La Follette enters the scene. Each more sectional country and sectional than the other, each more narrow and more selfish than the other, each more narrow and more selfish than the other, each more narrow and more selfish than the other.

La Follette's Ambition.
La Follette is manufacturing out of the present situation political ammunition for his battles in the future, and with the shrewdness of a statesman and with the shrewdness of a politician, he is not deterred by attribute considerations until his strong and ruthless purpose is achieved. La Follette and the insurgents have divided their forces accurately and well. La Follette is to present and press the wool and cotton schedules, and the insurgents are to present and press the tariff schedule. While the House of Representatives is engaged in the tariff schedule, La Follette is to present and press the wool and cotton schedules, and the insurgents are to present and press the tariff schedule.

Senate is Mobilized.
Once more sectional courtesy has its inconspicuous emphasis as a handicap to the business of the United States.

The question is whether the gathering clouds of the Senate will be the protection of the American people can overcome La Follette to action and expedite the settlement of these important economic issues.

Hearing upon this, the President has called the bluff of the Senate insurgents, who threaten an all summer session if they are not permitted to proceed. The President has called the bluff of the Senate insurgents, who threaten an all summer session if they are not permitted to proceed.

In this announcement the President puts a quietus on the belief that a fat man cannot stand the heat of a Washington summer as well as a long-built Wisconsin or a rawboned Kansas or any statesman in town.

The testimony of witnesses, Victor Hugo and William Lewis, was nothing more than a confirmation of the testimony of Browne, the chauffeur.

He had shadowed Mrs. Gaudier for forty-seven days. Time they brought to court. Hugo, who gave his evidence in a clear and concise manner.

He was a witness in the case of the "kissless bridegroom," Edw. Verner Gaudier, the last night, for the wedding of his bride, today.

The evidence submitted in the wife's suit to get her.

Shadowed for 47 days.

Rats and Puffs the Style

Women who cover their heads with masses of false hair in time have diseased scalp.

Rats and puffs are denounced by doctors as unhygienic dust and germ catchers.

They exclude the air from the scalp, and the pressure on the delicate network of veins soon results in the loss of hair.

A good thing to shampoo the head with is a neutral soap, combined with Glycerin, White of Eggs, Coconut Oil and Salicylic Acid.

These are the ingredients Brin's Head Wash is made of. It removes every trace of dandruff and scales from the scalp and leaves the hair soft and glossy.

"NEARLY everybody likes a 'cold bottle of beer' with the outing lunch. They gloat over the bottle when it contains Harvard Export Beer.

Nothing but the best Barley Malt, the choicest Bohemian Hops and pure Artesian Well Water, are used in the brewing of Harvard Export (Green Label) Beer.

That's why it's so rich in nutritive qualities; so delightful in its flavor. The same life and brilliancy one finds in beer drawn directly from the wood is found in this bottled beer.

Mention the name Harvard when ordering your next supply. For sale where good beer is sold."

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMNER ST., BOSTON, JUNE 29, 1911.

An Appeal to Mr. Francis Welch

Mr. Welch's Position in the West End Matter is Commanding, and He Has It Already Within His Power to Do a Great Public Service.

Mr. Francis Welch is a VERY IMPORTANT FACTOR in the difficult and confusing three-cornered situation in which the readjustment of our metropolitan transportation problem is involved. Mr. Welch is one of the great trustees of Boston. Into his hands have been placed the tremendous property interests of many men, women and children.

It happens that, among other trust property, he CONTROLS about 10,000 shares of the West End Street Railway stock and he also controls the most active representatives of that group of recalcitrant West End stockholders who think it decent and even proper to TAKE ADVANTAGE of Boston's necessity for the extension of its transportation facilities to extort from the public an eight per cent. return upon their ancient investments, when thirteen years ago they admitted that seven per cent. was enough and were willing to agree upon seven per cent. for ninety-nine years.

The Boston Elevated is apparently willing to retreat from its demand for a fifty-year control of our underground streets and to accept suggestions for the improvement of minor details in the pending bills. But the difficulty in the situation is the doubt whether a bill which does not provide for eight per cent. on the West End stock will be accepted by the West End Street Railway stockholders.

To control 10,000 shares is to be a LEADER and ALMOST A MASTER in this important situation. Mr. Welch ought to feel his responsibility. Most of the property which he holds in trust is in real estate—Boston real estate. The larger interests of Mr. Welch's trustship lie in the development of Boston, and that development is dependent upon the extension of our transportation facilities. No business man in Boston ought to be more sensitive than Mr. Welch to an appeal to help the growth of real estate values in Boston and to make it easier to do business here and better to live here.

The situation does not leave him with a divided duty. The interest of those clients who have the beneficial ownership of the West End stock which Mr. Welch controls do not demand any effort to increase the large and safe return of seven per cent. upon their stock. In these days seven per cent. upon dead capital is a large return. It was ADMITTED to be SUFFICIENT thirteen years ago when the West End stockholders agreed to accept it for a period beyond their own lives and the lives of their children.

As a lawyer Mr. Welch knows that the policy of the law contemplates that a trustee shall seek safe rather than great returns upon his trust property and that a trustee may not seek the large profits, with the accompanying risk, which he could seek with his own property.

As a business man, Mr. Welch is reputed to have heeded these precepts religiously. It is even complained of his policy that he allows real estate to go undeveloped, if it is yielding a certain though small return, rather than to take the risk of development.

The West End stock is yielding to-day a large profit even upon property which is not in trust. To demand a larger return in the face of present conditions and the present state of public opinion is to hazard that profit.

The value of the West End stock depends upon the right of the West End Street Railway to do business upon its present location, and that right is WHOLLY DEPENDENT upon the PUBLIC WILL.

Is it not a violation of the sound and conservative policy of the law to invite public reprisal by an unreasonable and uncompromising attitude in this situation? Is it not inconsistent with the known business principles and methods of Mr. Welch to pursue a great gain at the risk of a worse and reasonable profit?

Mr. Welch's position is COMMANDING, and he has it already within his power to do a GREAT PUBLIC SERVICE. The Boston Elevated indicates a disposition not to be unreasonable. The public is never unreasonable in this situation. The public does not say, as it will might say to the West End stockholders, that seven per cent. is too great a fixed return upon dead capital.

The tendency of the times is to deny with increasing force a profit upon public franchises greater than the market rate of interest. But the public does not take this position toward the West End stockholders. It only asks of them to cease their EXTORTIONATE demands and to permit a solution of this confused and confusing problem, so that legislation may be passed and the construction of the new tunnels may be started without delay.

Mr. Welch can do his city and his State a public service by co-operating with the Governor and with all the other parties concerned to bring about a bill which may be passed this year.

Will Mr. Welch help out in this important situation?

"Trying to Make Up Her Mind"

A Humorous View of the Day When Women Will Vote. But It Isn't SO VERY HUMOROUS After All.
Copyright, 1911, by American Journal Company.

Nothing is more clumsy than the attempt of "funny men" to ridicule the "votes for women" campaign. One of these feeble attempts represents a woman in a voting booth. Spiders are spinning their webs on her hat and skirt, and men—fat, thin, young, old, and all disgusted—are awaiting in line while the woman "tries to make up her mind." The idea is, of course, to show that it would be foolish to let woman vote, because she would waste too much time thinking over her ballot.

As a matter of fact, it would be an excellent thing to let woman vote, for the very reason that she WOULD SPEND SOME TIME THINKING OVER HER BALLOT.

What this country needs is more voters that will THINK about their vote, not only in the voting booth but before going into the booth, and afterward.

The curse of this country is men that vote about as they take a cocktail—walking in, snatching a cross in a column, not because they know or care anything about the men in the column, but because that represents "their party."

If it be true—AND IT IS TRUE—that women would study the names of men running for office, study their records, think over the issues, vote strictly in accordance with conscience and convictions, and regardless of party lines, that would be an excellent thing, even if it did keep a few men of the cocktail variety waiting in front of the voting booth.

THE CYNIC

HEED NOT THE CRANK WHO CANTS THAT BEAUTY IS A SNARE. A MASQUE FOR SIN. HIS HEART IS GALL, HIS TONGUE A Viper's Tongue. HIS GREEN EYES GLARE WITH ENVY AND WITH SPLEEN, DISTORTING ALL TO HIM, THE BLUSH OF MODESTY IS SHAME; FAIR VIRTUE, PAINTED VICE. ALIKE, THE WISE AND INNOCENT, AS FOOLS, THIS FOOL DEFAMES. NO WORSE PHILOSOPHY COULD FIENDS DEVISE! THE SUNLIGHT LIMBS BUT SHADOWS OF HIMSELF. HE ACHES WITH EMPYNESS, AN ANIMATED SHELL WITHOUT A SOUL, OR OTHER AIM THAN SELF. TO SUCH AS HE, IS PARADISE WITH HELL. SYNONYMOUS!

The Science of Earthquakes

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

A VERY notable fact in connection with the recent earthquake in Mexico is that the crust of the earth is as sensitive as the skin of an animal, and he points out that the shock imparted to the crust of the earth was registered at other places. Quoted thousands of miles from the point of origin and beyond the Atlantic ocean. It was felt by the seismograph at San Francisco, in Spain, at Brussels in Belgium, at London in the center of the continent of Europe and even at New York City in the United States, as well as at many other places. The direction of the course of disturbance and the distance were calculated with considerable accuracy. This is not a new experience. It is a remarkable occurrence of the large number of simultaneous observations. It shows the progress that the science of seismology is making. Of course we cannot exercise any control over earthquakes—they will continue to come when they will—but we are all gaining rapidly in knowledge of the localities where they may be expected to occur, of the nature of the rocks in which they originate, of the causes which produce them and of the means of avoiding some of their most disastrous effects. The seismologist follows their "waves," running through the solid crust with terrific speed, and studies their peculiarities with an accuracy which is astonishing. A Delectable Dish

By BERTON BRALEY

PRATHER, consider as long as you will. Something you think is a vapid delectable. Such as will give you a rich and respectable. Dilect, delicious and sizable thrill. Tasting to life all your nerves gustatory—Toll me about it and paint me its glory. Colored with highly extravagant phrases—Go just as far as you like in its praises. Chant it as wondrously fine as you please. Go into trances and wild rhapsodies. Sing all the "perfect" and "matchless" creations (Pastries and jellies and sauces and ices) Made by the chefs of the numerous nations. Sing of their sauces, their relishes, spices; Warble the contrary, rapturous and blissful. Praise it that dish, or the other, or this! I will wait, patiently, till you are through. Then—ah, I'll tune up and sing unto you—strawberry shortcake of old-fashioned make. Such as our mothers were able to bake; And—you will nevermore venture to call Anything else any marvel at all.

Strawberries, red as the mouth of a lass 19; Flavor so perfect it even surpasses Kisses you'd steal from the fair maiden's lips; Sugar and juice that deliciously drip; Crust that is faultless by lyric of Spring; Sunshine and moonlight and zephyrs Elysian; Golden-bued clouds that bedazzle your vision; And, but this seems too prosy to utter, Cater and flog and plump of lettuce; Salt—and a portion of good baking powder.

That is the recipe, plain as you wish. Add country cream, and—ye gods, what a dish!

Taste—your eyes gleam and your heart's thumping louder; Your grin widens out and your palate thrills "Joy!" And you feel like an angel and call it a boy!

It is none of your tasteless, cheap restaurant stuff! All flub dub and paper and whipped froth and sugar! The honest old strawberry shortcake you know! When cooking was cooking—not sauces and bliss! Well, that is the dish I am singing to you!
